For Hi-Fi and Home Cinema

Cornered speakers are a great choice for a discreet two channel system in your home, but in addition to mounting in the corner, they can also be installed vertically or horizontally on walls and ceilings and as such they are especially suited for Home Cinema and Dolby Atmos installations.

With Cornered, it is possible to have a multi-channel Home Cinema system in your house, without making your living room look like a sound studio. As a special feature, two cabinets can be coupled together to operate as bi/di-pole speakers in home cinema application.

The image shows a modern interior space with a ceiling made of horizontal wooden slats. The walls are made of stone, and there are large windows on the left side. In the foreground, there is a large, dark, rectangular object, likely a subwoofer. A light blue arrow points to the right, towards the subwoofer.
